Our Folklore

Long ago, you were molten rock, and I—well, I spoke the language of bears.

But now that I have been out of the forest for so long, all the words and grammar escape me, and I often find myself lost. And you—well, you are often mistaken for a statue in this solid state. No more rumblings and agitations. We are both quiet these days.

New Poetry from Lisa Stice: “Water Cycle”

No matter where we are, the oceans meet us in some form.

I am small and my daughter (who is only eight) – is even smaller

and still, our dog is smaller yet, then there are those microscopic zoeand phytoplankton

and the not so micro fish that eat them and so on

Headstrong

I'm sorry catches in the throat and bruises in that wavering hesitation like a rock falling back to earth. See how it curves under the skin, twists and cuts as it hugs the voice box.

I forgive sways like a tamarack-hackmatack, red larch, juniper, larix laricina—of the low-lands with roots in cool mud and branches in the soft air where we hold the belief we are stronger than wind.

The end is as blue as slag and twice as worthless. This is where I say I never meant it, and this is where you say it doesn't matter anymore because words are less than clouds and leaves and stone.

Nicolai Fechin, Portrait of Varya Adoratskaya (1914)

Daughter

we are raising fire
a shock-headed girl
in this cold season

when you start a fire
be to windward, wait for it to break out within mind now what I say remain quiet

for when fire breaks

we call these special days nothing to me is sweeter than a crackling flame

\ some words borrowed from Struwwelpeter translated by Heinrich Hoffman ("any thing to me is sweeter," "shock-headed peter," "they crackle so, and spit, and flame," "mind now, Conrad, what I say") "The Attack by Fire;" The Art of War by Sun Tzu ("material for raising fire," "special days," "days of rising wind," "when fire breaks," "remain quiet," "wait for it to break out within," "when you start a fire, be to windward")*

Jacob Hoefnagel, "Orpheus Charming the Animals"

Homes Will Be Stripped Bare

this is one world

and this is another

the borders merely

traced out on the ground with a small stick

in one world, animals:

zebras, giraffes,

lions, horses,

and dinosaurs

bide their time

stand together

quietly encamped

kept in readiness

for a decision

made in a single day

to overthrow their kingdom

cause commotion at home

the animals know

there is no time to ponder just march to the place

beyond ordinary rules

* some words borrowed from "Weak Points and Strong" ("the lines of our encampment be merely traced out on the ground," "quietly encamped"), "The Attack by Fire" ("bide your time," "kept in readiness"), "The Use of Spies" ("there will be commotion at home"), "Attacks by Stratagem" ("overthrows their kingdom"), "Maneuvering" ("ponder before you make a move"), "Laying Plans" ("beyond the ordinary rules"), and "Waging War" (the homes of the people will be stripped bare") The Art of War by Sun Tzu

The Book Closes

words become a strange dream            an explosion the releasing of the trigger another shovelful of earth to plant secrets            a storm breaking with the momentum of a round stone and yet no real disorder at all just the melodies that can never be heard            the colors that can never be seen just like the little birds that fly far away            further than we will ever know

\ some words borrowed from "The Traveling Companion" by Hans Christian Anderson trans. Erik Christian Haugaard ("he dreamed a strange dream," "another shovelful of earth," "the words became a picture," "the little birds flew far into the world," "the storm broke") and from "Energy" The Art of War by Sun Tzu ("give rise to more melodies than can ever be heard," "more hues than can ever be seen," "releasing of the trigger,"*

“and yet no real disorder at all,” “the momentum of a round stone”)
