

New Poetry from Shana Youngdahl

After the Maine Tin Min Company Prospectus, 1880

The earth has veins we can open with our hammers.
Follow the cassiterite crystals down where the iron dark is picked by the swings of men who name minerals by the feel of them on damp fingers, the bands of elvan quartzite like the rough footprints of mythical man, or the smooth track Of native silver, or gold Ore floating in the salty Rubbish of St. Just. Imagine Fellow capitalists, what Enterprise can find Rose colored mica, purple
Fluor spar, tourmaline,
And a thin river of Tin Ore imbedded among calc spar crystals, follow that river, I say, crack the vein open.

To Find the Center of a Circle from a Part of the Circumference

Which is all I am really after, the path to the midpoint and how to get there from this little arch of my hand I'm told to span the dividers any distance and with one foot on the circumference describe the semi-circumferences: today pollen and blue sky, book bound in navy cloth and draped with black velvet. The ache in my wrist, throat and head dull like the birdsong we stop hearing weeks ago.

I'm trying to find the center: the point I can cut from.
I pencil out two indefinite lines and lean under this dome into the illuminated center.
Someone a very long time ago, told me to call point P.
There is comfort in such specifics, but still I feel like all the unwound clocks that fill old buildings; there is something I am supposed to do, but in the fog I am unfocused, turn my head to another arch and am led away.

First or only?

My child is three—wakes three times

a night
has no room

I would know. Wouldn't I?

Piling her piss-soaked blankets on the wood floor I leave them to fume, wait for the calendar or the swelling.

I know and don't. I'm half-open hungry, two days
from late.

I dreamt my name wrong.
I dreamt a boy laughing, my girl pulling his

baby boots on, spelling her own name that I could read by water.

37.

Find
a stone to fit the palm, our last iris, photographs of daughter's wet curls, half-burned

and broken candles, recall when sister believed the rainbow alive.

Collect your pebbles.

I leak
dying larkspur and the strain of mileage.

It's a glass night,
with clean towel,
and midwives in
the basement room
where spills won't wet spines and this damp brings the cool harness of crying.

39.

We set out walking
the child grabs a stick points at clicking marmots shakes the trees and piñon bleeds into her fingers she twists it into her hair.
She is pitched and dust rises like fire billowing between sisters.
